President Komentář/President’s Notes  By Ed Hamernik

Pozdrav/Greetings

Old Man Winter keeps blasting us with record snow and near-record cold but we Minnesotans love our changing seasons with all the beauty and wrath that comes with them. For certain, we do not deserve an iota of reference to being wimps and most of us take it with a smile and a cheery greeting.

Hours and hours of work by many members over the past months and years are coming to fruition with the final approval of the $150,000 Save America’s Treasures Grant from the National Park Service. A Building Planning Committee was formed last year and is now busy coordinating and implementing the rebuilding effort. The committee members are Joe Landsberger, Joyce Tesarek, Gary Novak, Chuck Draheim, and Ed Hamernik. Our mission is first to develop a long-term master plan for Board of Directors’ identified projects to restore our historic building. We will monitor the projects to ensure they meet federal grant requirements and national historic preservation regulations. We have identified a number of stakeholders (key users of the facility) and we will contact them to gather needs and desires for the master plan. A master plan is a requirement of any significant federal grant.

This is a matching grant; for Sokol to take full benefit, we must also contribute. We have significant matching funds to date but have a good way to go. So if you would like to support this restoration/upgrade effort, a contribution sent to Sokol MN would be much appreciated.

Remember our events: Šibřinky (March 5), Family Night (March 13), and Taste of Slovakia (March 20). Come join the fun.

Keep warm. Naď bearings.

Publications Committee  The Slovo is published ten times per year by Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota, a non-profit organization, 383 Michigan Street, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55102. Sokol Minnesota members receive the Slovo with their membership.

The deadline for the April 2011 issue is March 1. Slovo staff: Christy Banks, copy editor; seeking volunteer for layout editor; J. H. Fonkert and M. L. Kucera, interim co-managing editors; Joyce Tesarek, photographer; Norm Petrik, Mary Cahill, Jeanette Pafko, Jean Draheim, Cinnamon Whaley, Arlene Hamernik, Doreen McKenney, advisors. Photographs for this issue were provided by Cinnamon Whaley, Chuck Draheim, Debra Elias Morse, and Dan Washick. This March 2011 issue of Slovo will be archived on the Sokol Minnesota website after March 30.

The Slovo Advisory Committee welcomes submissions. Send suggestions, articles, and pictures digitally to <slovo@sokolmn.org>. Slovo now accepts business card size ads (3.5”x2”), paid in advance: one-time insertion $25; 3 consecutive issues: $65; 10 consecutive issues: $175. Ad reservation deadline is six weeks before publication (March 15 for May issue), with ad and payment due by copy deadline (April 1 for May ).

For problems with subscriptions, please contact us via e-mail: <slovo@sokolmn.org>; phone: 651-290-0542; or write to Slovo. We recently installed a new subscription operating system; we apologize to any subscriber who missed an issue or who received notice of payment due, when a payment had already been made. Please let us hear from you if you think a mistake has been made. We thank you for your patience as we implement a more efficient system.

As the post office makes changes, so must we. Slovo is mailed at non-profit bulk rate, which is very reasonable (averaging about 15¢ per copy), but we have to follow strict guidelines to secure these low rates. Our readers in Minneapolis and suburbs received their January copies nearly two weeks after those in Saint Paul. Why? The Post Office now sends some bulk mail to Des Moines to be distributed. With the help of Jeanette Pafko, we have made adjustments to our mailing process to make sure readers in the 553 and 554 zip code areas get their Slovos in a “timely fashion.”

Happy reading.

Slovo gift subscriptions and non-membership renewals are $15/year (10 issues). Please include name, address, phone number, and e-mail address with your new or renewing non-member subscription. Make your check to Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota; send to Sokol Minnesota Slovo Subscriptions/Renewals, 383 Michigan Street, Saint Paul, MN 55102.

News from the Board of Trustees  By Chuck Draheim

Last month we reported on six steam system repairs and two plumbing system repairs. Thankfully, we had no more leaks in January.

The photo shows a section of the main ¾” steam line. You can see some of the deterioration on the interior of the pipe and how it has consumed approximately one-half of the pipe wall. This section of pipe may date from when the steam heating was first installed. Repairs to our aging pipes are costing Sokol roughly $20,000 per year! The Board of Trustees and Finance Committee are working diligently to secure funds to replace and insulate all of the steam pipes in the building before the next heating season.

By Joyce Tesarek, CSPS Hall Legacy Building Fund Campaign Chair

Did you know it cost $82,000 to operate our historic CSPS Hall in 2010? More than $36,000 for property taxes and special assessments, $9,000 for insurance and licenses, $13,000 for utilities, and $24,000 for repairs and maintenance. It takes a lot of income to see that our hall is maintained and is available for all the classes, events, dinners, dances, meetings, activities, and socializing that happens there. One of the costs we can address is the money we spend repairing our “historic” steam pipes: over $39,000 in the past two years alone. Chuck Draheim and the Board of Trustees are collecting bids to replace and insulate all the heating system pipes. Not only will this avoid future repairs, but it should decrease utility expenses as well.

We are well on the way to matching our $150,000 Save America’s Treasures, Historic Preservation Grant, but we still need your help to reach our goal.

Consider making a one-time larger donation or pledge. Encourage interested friends to help also. Together we will make this happen! Make your check payable to Sokol Minnesota; write Legacy Fund in the memo line. Mail to CSPS Hall Legacy Building Fund, 383 Michigan Street, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55102.

FILM REVIEW By Cinnamon Whaley

Capricious Summer (Rozmarné léto) 1967

Outside a small village by a river, three friends in their fifties spend their time arguing, drinking, and watching the summer days go by. The group includes Antonin, who runs the swimming bathhouse where the men spend their days, an army major, and a cannon. The unusual appearance of a horse-drawn caravan on the other side of the river breaks the daily monotony. The man walking along the caravan crosses the river on a long, striped pole and introduces himself as Mr. Ernie, a conjurer. He lets the group know of his upcoming performance in the village while performing a slight-of-hand trick. He crosses back to the other side of the river, pulls up his pole on to his shoulder, and continues on his way. The men, curious, go in to town to further investigate Mr. Ernie and his show. They watch as the conjurer’s assistant, Anna, moves through the crowd with a collection dish, and they are all completely taken by her beauty. All three of the men court Anna, including Antonin, who is married. After becoming suspicious of Antonin’s actions, his wife leaves him to keep house for Mr. Ernie, in the caravan. This short look into the lives of six people is a quiet movie, at times funny, at times awkward. Watching a married man and a cannon approach a woman half their age does hold some comic value, and Katerina moving in with Mr. Ernie is certainly good for a laugh. The movie is just over an hour long, and while it’s not on my list of most memorable Czech films, it’s worth the time.
Volunteering is a way of life for Dan Washick. He has many interests and gives of his time generously. He lives on Lake Manuella near Darwin, 80 miles west of Sokol CSPS Hall. He thinks nothing of driving two hours to Saint Paul whenever he is asked to help at the Hall. He tirelessly has carried garage sale items up to the Hall, then returned two days later to pack up the leftovers and haul them back down again at the end of the sale. He is one of our many men-on-the-spot to help with last minute fixes and set-ups for the Czech and Slovak Festival each September. Sokol Minnesota is lucky to have Dan as one of our loyal members.

Dan’s list of volunteer activities range from being an AARP Driver Safety Program instructor in Meeker County, to three trips to Mississippi to help clean up after Hurricane Katrina, to visiting and carrying for elderly relatives and long-time senior friends in nursing homes. He takes great pride in the 14 times that he has ridden his bike in The Ride Across Minnesota (TRAM), a fundraiser for the National MS Society. Dan was one of 900 riders in the five-day, 291-mile ride in 2010, which raised more than $800,000. He has also ridden in other charity events. When his cousin needs him to help in his machine shop, Dan rides 16 miles each way to Hutchinson to lend a hand.

He has over 25,000 miles (equal to the circumference of the earth!) on his favorite bike. Not bad for a lanky guy who is 76! The bike in the picture has been fitted with a higher, second set of handlebars, which allow him to ride upright.

Dan grew up in a Czech household (Bohemian/Moravian) in Saint Paul. He credits his maternal Grandmother Jerabek as his good example to help others, “She would assist anyone who needed help. She’d leave her own chores on the farm to help a neighbor.”

Warm and Sunny Times at Sokol Camp
By “Pine City Petunia,” the second

Still buried under mounds of snow? It’s nice to know that spring is just around the corner. Daydreams are bringing vacations, long walks outdoors, and water-sports to mind. Where can you indulge in these rites of spring and summer? How about coming up to Sokol Camp?

Being able to rent rooms and spend time at Camp is one of the perks of being a Sokol member. Come up for the day, the weekend, or a week. Sokol Camp is just one and a half hours north of the Twin Cities, on the north-eastern shore of Cross Lake in Pine City, Minnesota. With a main lodge that has ten bedrooms, a large common room with a fireplace, a large kitchen, two baths, and hot and cold running water, Sokol Camp is a convenient and affordable vacation destination.

When you rent time at Sokol Camp, you also have access to the docks, rowboats, and some of the best fishing spots on the lake. Launch your watercraft at the public access in Pine City and spend the weekend on the water. Along with the water activities and the day trips, there is also another favorite thing to do….nothing. There is a wonderful relaxation that happens when you spend some time just looking at the lake, listening to loons, or reading on the front porch.

Sokol Camp is also a great jumping off point for day excursions. The Northwest Company Fur Post historical reconstruction is just west of Pine City. Several golf courses are nearby. Hinckley, with its casino and fire museum, is 15 minutes north and Duluth is less than two hours away.

The Sokol Camp season opens April 30, 2011, with our annual Camp Open-up. Come spend the day sweeping the cobwebs from the Camp and the winter from your mind. Set aside Sunday, August 14, 2011, for a fun-filled day at the Booya Picnic. The camp season ends September 25, 2011, when the shutters go up and screens come down, dishes are put into storage, the docks are pulled from the lake, and the water pump is turned off.

For more information about using Sokol Camp, please call Jean Draheim at 651-426-2826 or 651-210-0401.

Does Your Czech or Slovak Town Have a Website?
By Ginger Simek, President, Czechoslovak Genealogical Society International <www.cgsi.org>

Does your Czech or Slovak ancestral town have a website? Have some fun and find out. More and more towns have websites every day. The information found on town sites varies, but usually you will find something about the history, the town crest, perhaps a photo gallery, current and future events, a map of the town, or even current weather conditions. Some even have live webcams. If you are interested in visiting, there may be accommodation and restaurant listings. Many sites have a button (often a British flag) that will take you to an English-language version of the page.

For the Czech Republic (including Moravia), the usual format for a town website is: <www.nameoftown.cz>. Some examples of towns this works for are Jíčín, Kutná Hora, Tabor, Brno, and Přerov. Look for more.

For other town locations, you may find a site, but there is not the option to look at it in English. For these situations, use Google and key in the name of the town in the Search box.

Use this same basic format for the Slovak Republic: www.nameoftown.sr. Svidník, Levice, Piešťany, Zvolen, Košice, and Levčo are examples of Slovak town names that have web addresses of this sort. Again, use Google if there is not an English option. It can be fun to view these sites in Czech or Slovak and see if you can figure out the meaning of the headings or captions.

If your town does not have a website yet, keep checking back. It is now a global world network. Some towns even have Facebook pages.

Some information in this article was contributed by Kathy Jorgenson, a CGSI and Sokol Minnesota member.

Don’t miss Šibřinky: traditional Sokol costume ball at Mardi Gras time with live music, folk dancing, food Saturday, March 5, 6-11 p.m.

Jan Masaryk: Caught Between Two Worlds
By Josef A. Mestenhauser

Editor’s note: This article is a continuation from previous issues and is an abbreviated version of an article appearing on the CSCC website <cs-center.org>.

After Jan Masaryk’s return from an unsuccessful stay in America, he was caught up in the devastation of the First World War. Seen as an opponent by the Austrian government, his father Tomaš managed to escape into exile. Jan himself was soon drafted into the imperial army where he earned the rank of lieutenant. He was given charge of some Russian prisoners of war and treating injured cavalry horses. His family suffered further misfortune when his sister Alice was arrested by the Austrians as a spy and imprisoned her with prostitutes. Additionally, his mother, on a meager income, often went hungry; when he could, Jan obtained passes to visit and bring her army food.

Jan’s stay in an American sanatorium was not the only time he was hospitalized for treatment of a personality disorder. Following the Munich tragedy, he disappeared for several weeks in London, presumably for some treatment, and once again in Washington in 1942 after learning of the destruction of Lidice. The bestiality of the Nazis caused a permanent switch of his hostilities from all Nazis to a generalized distrust toward all Germans and all things German, an intolerance which remained with him all the way through his subsequent activities as Minister of Foreign Affairs in Exile and later as Minister in the liberated Czechoslovakia. This attitude explains his complete support of the expulsion of the German population from the CSR; later it justified his turnaround on accepting American aid through the Marshall Plan, which he initially favored but ultimately rejected, under pressure from Stalin.

Masaryk suffered another round of depression after returning from his encounter with Stalin. In Moscow, Masaryk surprised everybody when he was the only member of the Czechoslovak delegation to actually argue with Stalin and plead for a “unique Czechoslovak approach” to socialism. Stalin reportedly rebuked him by pointing out that the Marshall Plan was also designed to fit the “Czechoslovak approach” to socialism. Stalin reportedly rebuked him by pointing out that the Marshall Plan was also designed to help reconstruct Germany, now the Slavs’ mortal enemy for all time. Jan was treated in Karlovy Vary and also in a Slovak sanatorium. Various authors have reported other times in his later years when he disappeared and was inaccessible for days.

Jan Masaryk suffered several further personal tragedies. One was the declining health and eventual death of his mother. Another was the divorce and subsequent death of his brother Herbert and the later death of Herbert’s two sons. In addition to her wartime imprisonment as a spy, his sister Alice also suffered from mental disorders all her life. During Jan’s exile in Washington, he cared for Alice when she was treated with electroshock therapy. Several of his American relatives added to Jan’s sense of family tragedy when one of his uncles died of cancer and a cousin committed suicide. These events led him to form the morbid conviction that there existed some preordained curse on the Masaryk and Garrigue families to which he himself would be subjected. He told his personal secretary, “One day I will end up in an asylum for the mentally ill, the same as Alice.”

After President Beneš accepted the February 1948 resignation of the cabinet ministers and thus legitimized the communist coup d’etat, Masaryk did not offer his resignation. Instead, he continued in the cabinet as Foreign Minister (evidence of his inability to understand a complex political situation and withdraw from his responsibility for it). He continued to show a “split” personality by speaking publicly in favor of the new political order while privately expressing his horror about the communist regime. During the last three weeks of his life he maintained an indecisive attitude, talking often in private about suicide, or alternatively about going into exile yet again, marrying his American friend Marcia Davenport, starting a new government-in-exile, or even about simply escaping from it all by fleeing to the U.S. On the night of March 6, he went to President Beneš for advice about remaining as foreign minister, but Beneš became angry, aware that Jan again wished to shift responsibility to someone else for the consequences of his actions. Beneš refused to offer advice; Masaryk apparently took this a personal betrayal of the complete loyalty he had given Beneš in unquestioningly supporting the president’s pro-Moscow, anti-German, and pro-socialist policies.

Masaryk then went to visit the grave of his father, staying longer than he had ever before. On March 9, he worked as usual, and at home late in the evening burned some documents and some foreign currency, took an especially warm farewell of his butler, and continued working alone on some papers and speeches he was to give the next day. The light in his apartment in the Cernin Palace was on past midnight. That was the night he died. His body was found before dawn in the courtyard of the palace.

There is more to this story, so please do not conclude yet that Jan Masaryk committed suicide. The story continues, and so will my account of the other explanation – that Masaryk was murdered.

SONG OF THE MONTH
By Georgiana Dolejsi

Téče Voda, Téče is published in American Sokol Sings, Berwyn, Illinois, 1974. It was a beloved song of President Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, founder and President of the Czechoslovakian Republic. Since his birthdate was March 7, 1850, this is a very fitting song for the March issue of Slovo.

Looking for FON? We Need You!  By Mary Cahill
Looking for a volunteer opportunity that provides Fun, Opportunity and Novelty? Then look no further than saying yes to a shift at this year’s Festival Of Nations (FON). Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota needs many volunteers to staff our participation in the event. This year’s FON event will be held May 5 - 8 at The Saint Paul River Center. Volunteers receive an admission ticket, kroj (ethnic costume) to wear while volunteering, on-the-job instructions, and the fun of working with a great group of people. Volunteers are needed in the café, and bazaar.

It takes many people to fill the shifts. For example, the café needs six volunteers per shift, and there are 10 shifts – so 60 people! We need people to take the public’s orders, help prepare the orders, and help fill the orders.

For more information, or to sign up for a shift, please call Mary Cahill, 651-738-9470 (café) or Doreen McKenney, 952-941-0426 (bazaar). Consider recruiting a friend to volunteer with you. Or, consider helping us fill an entire shift with friends and family. The Tesarek-Dolejsi families have done this on Sunday afternoon in the café for the past couple of years; it is a fantastic group of people that have a great time working together and helping out Sokol at the same time. Shifts are 3-4 hours in length. The Festival is open long hours, so there is plenty of time to come before or stay after your shift to take in the various performances and demonstrations, as well as shop the international bazaar and cafes to sample ethnic foods. Please consider contacting one of us to take a shift, or saying yes when we call you.
