Prezidentův komentář/President’s Notes  By Ed Hamernik

Pozdrav bratři a sestry/Greetings Brothers and Sisters

Recently I have been reading about Czech and Slovak influences on the development of America, which I find extremely interesting. The immigrants certainly are remembered for the communities they established and their impact on history, but what most caught my interest were the developments in the industrial, scientific, and cultural arenas that are credited to our ancestors. Since I grew up on a farm, I was drawn to the 1827 Czech invention by the Veverka Brothers of an improved wheeled plow called the ruchadlo (the “hustler”). Supposedly this plow was used on both sides of the Atlantic through the early 1900’s for farmland tillage. Ironically, my father had a wheeled plow on his farm that he purchased about 1918 and which he considered a very good implement. I did not witness its use, since my father purchased his first tractor and plow in 1937, the year I was born, so the new machines became the implements of choice for tillage. However, the old plow remained on the farm and became a toy for a lad interested in mechanical things. It had levers that moved and changed the position of the board, which spurred my imagination. That movement also contributed to a smashed finger, but that did not stop the play. I do not know to what extent the 1827 invention influenced the design of the implement my father used, but it is an interesting association. If our ancestors’ influence on America is of interest to you, there are books at our Sokol Gift Shop, and I am sure at other bookstores as well, plus information on the internet. Actually, my wife found an excellent book, The Czech Americans, at our spring Garage Sale in April.

The Planning Committee continues to work on the fire protection and the air conditioning systems under the direction of Gary Novak. The challenges of working with an older structure are only temporary roadblocks, but more importantly, they usually also involve additional financial burdens. The price tag continues to grow, which must also be addressed. So keep these projects in mind as the end of the year approaches. A contribution would be an excellent way to lower your tax burden. There is additional trench and floor cleaning required in the basement before it can be used for storage, but we have made good progress.

Remember our annual Pork Dinner on October 28; there’s always great food and it’s a great time. Again, this dinner is an excellent opportunity to volunteer and help our organization grow. We are proud of the fact that we are truly an organization of volunteers, so please step up to do your part. Thanks to all that do volunteer! It is greatly appreciated. Nazdar!

News from the Board of Trustees (BOT)

Fall Clean-Up Day on October 13
By Chuck Draheim, Chair, Board of Trustees

As I write this on the first of September, the forecast for the day is clear and sunny with a high in the mid-80s, hardly the kind of weather that says fall is on the way. The calendar, however, doesn’t lie, and fall is fast upon us.

The BOT will host a fall cleanup day on Saturday, October 13, at CSPS Hall. Our plan is to clean up the summer’s debris in the parking lot, trim more of the trees in the northwest corner, continue cleaning the drain trenches, and put the basement back into order after the disruptions of the recently completed construction work.

The workday will start at 9 a.m. and continue until approximately 4 p.m. All Sokols are invited, and encouraged, to join us. The more workers we have, the more work we can get done. This is an excellent opportunity to have a good time getting better acquainted with other members and also to keep the Hall looking nice for our members and guests. We hope to see many of you.

“Památník as a Genealogical Resource” and “Why My Austro-Hungarian Ancestors Were Neither Austrian nor Hungarian”
Contributed by Ginger Simek, President Czechoslovak Genealogical Society International <www.cgsi.org>

These are the topics for the CGSI Quarterly Program on October 27, 2012. You might ask, “What is Památník?” It is a recently translated and published book focusing on the Protestant Czech church congregations in the United States in 1900. The title states “North America,” but in fact, the book covers only the United States. Included are Presbyterians, Reformed, Congregational, Methodists, Baptists, and independent congregations. Jan Dus from Polička, Czech Republic, is presenting “Památník as a Genealogical Resource.” He and his wife, Anna, are the translators of the book. It is a hardcover, over 300 pages, has an illustration index, surname index, geographical name index, and a state-by-state list of the Czech Protestant Congregations. Jan Dus will be available to sign copies of the book, which can be purchased.

Paul Valasek is presenting the second topic, “Why My Austro-Hungarian Ancestors Were Neither Austrian nor Hungarian.” Paul Valasek is from Chicago and has been involved in genealogy since 1974. He is a founder of the Czech and Slovak American Genealogical Society of Illinois (CSAGSI), has published numerous articles in genealogical publications, and presented at various genealogical conferences, including CGSI’s. The Annual Membership Meeting will follow immediately after Paul Valasek’s presentation.

The program location is 1185 Concord Street North, South Saint Paul, Minnesota, in the main floor auditorium. Registration opens: 12:30 p.m.; the program starts: 1 p.m. Suggested donation: $5 for CGSI members and $8 for non-members. During registration and the refreshment break, visit our sales table to see dictionaries, language aids, maps, auto atlases, heritage and history books, and more.

Ample parking is available both north and south of the building as well as across the street. The 71B bus from downtown Saint Paul stops in front of the door. Everyone is welcome.

Thank you for supporting Sokol Minnesota!
In 2011, the CSPS Hall was selected to be one of the 25 grant candidates taking part in the National Historic Trust and American Express Partners in Preservation competition. Thanks to the work of our members, as well as participants nationally and internationally, the CSPS Hall was awarded $80,000 in grant money to install central air conditioning to the building. It was truly an opportunity to network globally and act locally.

The award plaque was presented to Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota at the August Membership Meeting. The plaque is a beautiful reminder of our pride that CSPS Hall was chosen to compete along with many prestigious and important historic sites, and even more, for being selected to receive funding.

The $80,000 will finance an air conditioning unit. However, we recently learned that the full build-out will cost an additional $85,000 to prepare the building to support and house the unit. Central air will make our events more comfortable and make the building usable for events and rentals during the hot summer months. Please consider a tax-deductible donation to help make the installation possible.

Walking through Europe: Eight Weeks, Six Countries, Countless Experiences
By Joe Landsberger, past president, Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota

This past summer, after months of planning, the time arrived for me to cover the European earth. Embracing the walk-through approach, with the exception of Switzerland, I wandered city and town streets most of the time without guidebooks or maps, and left to chance and local advice daily encounters with local history, art museums and exhibits, and the feel for where I was. The contexts for the journey were meetings and research into online communities, whether in corporations, organizations, or educational institutions themselves.

My journey began in France. For a week, André Bascoulergue, a Parisian Sokol friend, and I refined his intercultural fitness website community project for young children, SLICE. I am his pedagogical consultant; I also translated his presentation into English. In Paris we presented his project to UNICEF and later, he presented it to the World Sokol Federation Meeting in Prague, also the next stop on my trip.

The next four days I explored Warsaw, Poland, with meetings at Uniwersytet Warszawski (Warsaw University) and Politechnika Warszawska (Warsaw Technical University), as well as with Polish Quakers. Then on Day 21 of my trip, I entered Switzerland, meeting up with more friends from Saint Paul who live and work near Lausanne. It’s expensive there, but I had the luxury of their home, and they chauffeured me daily to scenic towns including Bern, Murten, Vevey, Gruyere, and Chateau d’Oex. If that were not enough, they drove me to the Swiss Grundtvig Project meeting in Solothurn, an amazing unique Swiss Baroque city dating from Roman and medieval times. The next day the Matterhorn was our destination! Awesome, and yes, I ordered the classic two-cheese fondue high up in a restaurant on the Dent de Lys, a mount in the pre-Alps.

On to Brussels, Belgium, and the land of chocolate and waffles, more museums, and more meetings, Bruges on the North Sea, the Venice of the North, deserves its status as a World Heritage Site. Its museums hold incredible paintings of the Flemish school, dating back to the 14th Century. Bruges also has museums on French fries, chocolate, and lighting!

I took the night ferry to Hull, England, and then the train to York where scholar Lisa Peschel’s apartment and neighbors awaited, while she was in the United States at a conference. In 2009 Lisa brought Karel Švenk’s The Last Cyclist on the Terezín Concentration Camp to Sokol Minnesota’s Theater. York, founded by Romans in the First Century, is an historic English walled city at the confluence of the Rivers Ouse and Foss. Its surrounding walls were my ten-day thoroughfares as I explored its offerings (the Minster!). Side trips included Castle Howard (Brideshead, two versions), Harrogate and Knaresborough.

My first TV of the trip included the British take (Team GB!) on the Olympics while I prepared/finalized my presentation for the 19th International Conference on Learning in London. My last day began at 8 a.m. with the concluding conference keynote address. Then I walked London to the Masonic Grand Lodge Museum, Saint Paul’s Cathedral, and the Courtauld Gallery where I was alone with rooms full of Impressionists! But that was not enough; I soldiered on to the British Gallery and then to the British Portrait Gallery, then I went back to my dorm at 9 p.m. to pack. Day 59, flight home, and thankful for friends, planning, and rolling suitcases.
Dobruška Language Course was fantastický
By Christy Banks

Since the Czech government began its Czech for Compatriots language program in Dobruška 22 years ago, our Sokol Minnesota unit has had at least a dozen members receive scholarships, and this summer I was lucky to receive one.

![A koláče break in Opočno with teachers and students L- R: Pat Slaber, Christy Banks, Gordana from Bosnia, Milena (a teacher), Margaret Supik (president of The Czech and Slovak Heritage Association, Baltimore, who has attended for 12 years and who knows all the Minnesota attendees), young Milena (another teacher, daughter of the older Milena), and Sharon Valasek, (center foreground), the Czech consul for Kansas City, Missouri.](Image 33x537 to 299x671)

Living in a dorm for a month with more than 60 other students from countries all around the world, all of whom had some kind of Czech connection, and participating in language and cultural programs from 8 a.m. to often late in the evening, inevitably is an intense experience. By the time I returned home, I was dreaming (if still not speaking fluently) in Czech.

A day began with 7 a.m. breakfast, followed by language classes conducted entirely in Czech until noon, with one 10-minute break. After lunch, a full afternoon of language classes lasted until 5 p.m. Breaking that routine, we took trips to tour incredible castles, a local brewery, the nearby Škoda automobile plant, or to hike near significant historical spots to learn Czech culture. Evenings were spent watching Czech films, singing folk songs and dancing, listening to presentations, or joining celebrations in the town. In short, it was an exhausting schedule to maintain for an entire month.

The students brought a variety of cultural perspectives, and tended to group together by common language: Slavic, English, and Spanish. I often wondered what our infinitely-supportive teachers (who got to go home at night) thought of us. Early on, they showed us a Czech film about some quirky people on holiday in a tour bus, often trying the patience of the equally-quirky tour guides—an obvious analogy to our own situation. Some students got carried away by late-night visits to pubs and missed class; others wandered off on field trips; still more shared emotional strains as if teachers were therapists. Like typical Czechs, I think our teachers reserved their judgment, since overall everyone participated whole-heartedly.

Most of the students were descendants of Czech immigrants, while many others had developed an interest in the culture. Some people’s connections I never found out. An Algerian doctor’s story was the most interesting: her father had studied at Dobruška in the Communist era, learning Czech in order to attend Charles University, and during his studies he met and married his Czech wife. Just about all the students arrived already speaking more Czech than we Americans could, and so we populated the beginners’ classes.

There were moments I always will remember clearly. A historian relating in simple Czech the whole history of the Czech nation to our hushed class in a single lecture, perhaps wondering how much we understood of the Czechs’ centuries-long struggle for survival. During a stop at a roadside ice-cream stand (in a country mostly free from air conditioning, ice-cream cones are doubly a treat), our limited Czech skills were surprisingly good enough to converse with retirees, who turned out to be Sokols freshly come from the Slet in Prague, who in turn were so pleased to learn our identities that we soon were singing folk songs and taking pictures together (in picture above, Christy is second from right), and at last waved good-bye like old friends. Learning to sing Ta naše písnička česká, written during the Nazi threat to celebrate the beauty of the Czech language. An unexpected “game” where the teachers, disguised as figures from Czech folklore, guided us by candlelight through the evening streets of a village, and ended with gifts of small memorial scrolls and seeds of a linden tree (the national symbol) to bring home to plant and, hopefully, grow, to “help us remember our distant friends in Dobruška and our time together.” Our graduation ceremony in Prague in the oldest halls of Charles University, when a government minister spoke to us in Czech and said how pleased he was to see that we could understand, and how he hoped that we continue our friendships long after we returned home.

How has my time in Dobruška changed me? I still miss reading street signs in Czech. The language for me has become a living one, to be spoken and used. I have walked in what seems to me the most beautiful city on earth, Prague, and in the small and also beautiful town of Opočno. I have bicycled through the Czech countryside in summer, looking back to one town and forward to the next. This gift is priceless, but like some gifts it comes with a responsibility: to remember all that I was taught, to remember all my Czech friends, and to do the things that friendship requires.

Saint Paul Czech and Slovak Folk Dancers Celebrate Anniversary with Gala Tour
By Richard Sargent and Pam Langworthy

On June 18, many of the Saint Paul Czech and Slovak Folk Dancers traveled to Prague for a two-week tour of the Czech Republic and Slovakia, to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the founding of our dance group. The trip was a wonderful experience and exceeded all expectations.

In Ratiškovice, the town that helped our group get started 50 years ago by providing us with encouragement and authentic kroje, we were greeted royally by the mayor and children and adults dressed festively in their red, white, and blue kroje. The children offered us the traditional welcome of rye bread and salt, as well as delicious Moravian koláče. A musical group, which included the cimbál (a traditional form of the dulcimer), accompanied the singing and dancing. We enjoyed wine with a vintner in his cellar and sang traditional songs.

Following a delicious duck dinner, we tasted seven Moravian wines and danced to the music of a spirited Czech group.

In Slatiňany, we were treated to fantastic singing and dancing from The Bartered Bride (by Czech composer Bedřich Smetana) and to a delicious Czech meal at the Sokol Hall. We were delighted to thank personally the Sokols at Slatiňany, who had voted for our Sokol Minnesota unit in last year’s Partners in Preservation contest.

At the Dvorana Dance Center in Kvetus, we made jitnìce and other foods. We also learned a new dance in Jitka Bonusova’s beautiful country dance studio.

In Ježov, local women treated us to homemade butter, sang poignant Czech songs, and crafted floral designs using colored sand.

We very much enjoyed seeing the Mucha Slav Epic in Prague; an unusual museum for a fruit tree variety that is found only in the Central Europe, the oskeruse (known as the service tree) in Tvarozna Lhota; and the Museum of Czech Emigrants in Kojakovice. We also found the tour of Karlštejn Castle to be exceptionally delightful.

We were inspired by the professional quality of the dancing during our five days at the Strážnice International Folk Festival.
We also visited the Bedřich Smetana Museum, many kroje museums and workshops, and a surprisingly good museum of the village trades common in the 18th century (trades which many of our forebears likely followed). The Bata Shoe Museum, in addition to presenting the fascinating history of the global company founded by the visionary Tomáš Baťa, also includes an intriguing elevator with a bathroom.

We toured the stable of the rare Kladruby breed of Czech horses, founded by King Rudolph II in the 16th century and prized ever since for its excellence; the well-known Lipizzaner breed is derived from the Kladruby.
At the end of our tour, some of us had the thrill of marching through the streets of Prague with American Sokol members at the head of the Sokol Slet parade.
This trip was truly a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Craig Johnson, new SOKOLMN Webmaster

Craig Johnson is Sokol Minnesota’s new Webmaster. He is an independent software consultant specializing in interactive website development. He has several not-for-profit clients and has developed web-based staff scheduling software. He chose self-employment in order to have the flexibility needed to pursue his interest in dance. For 21 years, he danced with the Wild Goose Chase Cloggers and toured with them internationally. He also performed for several years with the American Swedish Institute folk dancers and with the Norskefokldanclaget. Currently he is active with Tapestry, a folk dance organization based in Minneapolis, and he has recently become hooked on the Tango.

An avid photographer, Craig usually carries a camera everywhere he goes. He lives in the West 7th neighborhood and is happy to be on board with Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota. We welcome Craig as Webmaster!

Interesting News for Sokols….

Chicagoland Czech American Community Center introduces its new website: <chicagocacc.org>
The mission of the Chicagoland Czech American Community Center is to establish a Czech cultural, educational, and business center. The center will provide a home for many Czech-American organizations such as a Czech heritage museum, library, theater, business center, and programs for youths and seniors.

Your inquisitive managing editor read in the New York Times, September 3, 2012, page C4, that the Bohemian National Hall in New York City staged Leoš Janáček’s Jenufa in early September, produced by Opera Slavica, which “is a hybrid opera troupe and training program, founded in 2009 by conductor and pianist William Hobbs with the idea of schooling singers in the works that must be sung in Slavic Languages.” How interesting! Have any Minnesota Sokols ever been to the Bohemian National Hall in New York City? Tell us about it.

SONG OF THE MONTH by Georgiana Dolejši

ZVADLA RŮŽE (A Wilted Rose) Valčíková píseň

The song this month is arranged by Fred J. Divisek. The guitar diagrams are by Joseph Divisek. It has a copyright from 1933 by Joseph Jiran, 1333 West 38th Street, Chicago, Illinois. It is a lovely song, even though it is very sad. At Senior Singers, we often sing only three verses. It is a song that is sung sometimes at funerals.

A wilted rose, wilted by itself
The most beautiful blossom of spring
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old,
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old.

She was a seamstress, in poverty,
She lived with her mother,
Who always lived only for her.
She loved her little heart...
She lived only for her
She loved her little heart.

But she loved
Her young man the most
His love was a disappointment
He never came back to Jirinka
His love was a disappointment
He never came back to Jirinka.

Don’t cry, old mother.
Because no one loves me
Since you gave me life,
You can also bury me
Since you gave me life,
You can also bury me.

She buried her in the cemetery
So she could peacefully sleep
And those who had danced with her
Never came to wish her Godspeed
And those who had danced with her
Never came to wish her Godspeed.

A wilted rose, wilted by itself
The most beautiful blossom of spring
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old,
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old.

ZVADLA RŮŽE (A Wilted Rose) Valčíková píseň

The song this month is arranged by Fred J. Divisek. The guitar diagrams are by Joseph Divisek. It has a copyright from 1933 by Joseph Jiran, 1333 West 38th Street, Chicago, Illinois. It is a lovely song, even though it is very sad. At Senior Singers, we often sing only three verses. It is a song that is sung sometimes at funerals.

A wilted rose, wilted by itself
The most beautiful blossom of spring
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old,
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old.

She was a seamstress, in poverty,
She lived with her mother,
Who always lived only for her.
She loved her little heart...
She lived only for her
She loved her little heart.

But she loved
Her young man the most
His love was a disappointment
He never came back to Jirinka
His love was a disappointment
He never came back to Jirinka.

Don’t cry, old mother.
Because no one loves me
Since you gave me life,
You can also bury me
Since you gave me life,
You can also bury me.

She buried her in the cemetery
So she could peacefully sleep
And those who had danced with her
Never came to wish her Godspeed
And those who had danced with her
Never came to wish her Godspeed.

A wilted rose, wilted by itself
The most beautiful blossom of spring
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old,
It was disappointed in love,
A rose only eighteen years old.

Dobruška Language Graduates
Czech and Slovak Sokol Minnesota is proud of its many members who have attended the language program in Dobruška, Czech Republic. At Sokol’s mid-September Czech-Slovak Festival, ten Dobruska graduates gathered for photos, between volunteering in the kitchen, membership table, gift shop, and silent auction, as well as participating in the folk dancing performances.
